Brad Sherman: the man who represents Deep State's move against Trump (and assorted potentially pizzagate-shaped rabbit hole goodies)

7 hours ago

mandireiserra ▾ 65 in news

Those who have been paying attention knew this day would come: in order to distract from political corruption, a big move would happen to shift attention to something more controllable ... say, such as mainstream media's planned blitzkrieg impeachment proceedings against the president who just so happens is attempting to disassemble the human trafficking problem plaguing America.

So let's delve into Mr. Brad Sherman and what all he's associated with, shall we?

First off, he's a Democrat based in Southern California. In fact, he's "liberal," but staunchly establishment. He will do as told by the party.

His communications guy is a former Media Matters for America producer.

He also would rather have the president/vice president elected via congress rather than popular vote (you know, that way it stays in the hands of the elites and not America the Whole)... this lil snippet is from a report (specifically how to change elections) you can read here.

In the 108th Congress, Representative Brad Sherman introduced H.J.Res. 113, a proposed constitutional amendment that would revise voting procedures for President in a contingent election. Under the proposed amendment, Representatives would cast votes on an individual basis; the candidate who received the greatest number of votes, provided it was a majority of votes cast, would be elected President. The resolution was referred to the House Committee on the Judiciary, which took no further action before the House adjourned.

He also does quite a few talks at high schools, and is part of Close Up;

CLOSE UP METHODOLOGY AND INSTRUCTION

Our pedagogy arises directly out of the Close Up mission: To inform, inspire, and empower students to exercise the rights and accept the responsibilities of citizens in a democracy.

Though our many student programs each have their own distinct learning goals, they all share a common grounding in the aims of our mission. That mission informs every aspect of the design, content, and instructional method of all Close Up programs. The overarching goal of all our student programs is to equip students with the knowledge, skills, and dispositions necessary for effective and responsible participation in the processes of democratic society and the American political system. Given that goal, our core commitment to experiential learning becomes clear. Citizenship in a democracy demands a readiness and capacity to act; Close Up's role in helping students develop that readiness and capacity lies in direct exposure to the historical foundations, institutional structures, and day-to-day practices that underlie reasoned discourse, debate and cooperative decision-making.

The methodology and instructional practices described below rely on over 40 years of developed expertise, allowing us to precisely craft experiential learning models to the goal of our programs and the aims of our mission.

While there is no single "ism" that defines the Close Up methodology, we draw from a family of four interrelated influences as we design, adapt, and innovate our programs.

Experiential Education

We see the primary role of the Close Up experience as complementary to classroom civic learning; our part is to take

Hey, check out the background of this photo and who he's photographed with... it's Hillary Clinton (and George Bush, and Obama...)!

Here's where we go down the rabbit hole.

First off, I think we all can agree that alphabet soup agencies such as the CIA operate fronts; i.e. businesses or services which allow them to gather or pass info, propaganda, intelligence, or make not-obvious handoffs. I'm not saying these businesses are fronts, I am saying that it's possible they are, given the nature of the business and how it could offer support to those participating in human trafficking.

He's also associated with Common Cause (which shares an address/suite with other business) anybody else find it interesting that Common Cause is registered to an Iowa address?

Should be noted that Common Cause's website seems to be targeted toward getting Trump out by any means possible.

Now, when I punched in the address registered to Common Cause, it seemed to represent a firm that had several businesses listed -- and those business names don't make much sense.

Ya know, like Dyncorp and Halliburton, but more state-side Mr Clean.

And think about that for a moment; if there's a huge human trafficking ring, that involves logistics such as transportation, housing and upkeep, and a need for their employees contracted out to keep their mouths shut; thus better to use a single company -- tell new hires that the NDA is standard practice when it comes to entering government buildings or areas considered "sensitive" to clean/renovate torture rooms/stock kleenex and use that signed paper as a Sword of Damocles over the new hire's head. They want a cushy paycheck? You don't say shit.

*What stands out to me is the D.C. Ranch Animal Hospital. Is there a D.C. Ranch, or is it for equine and bovine animals within the vicinity of D.C.? Also think of how easy it'd be to move people in livestock trailers. Just throwing that out there. *

Swinging back to Openworks/O.P.E.N. America, I think it's worth noting that the listed person changed his name, going with the tail-end of his surname to, I dunno, blend in more? Make it easier for people to pronounce? Give himself a new identity?

Business Owner

Eric Roudi is a graduate of Tufts University and holds a Bachelors of Science in Engineering and a Bachelors of Administration in Economics. He also attended the Harvard Business School OPM Program.

In 1983, Roudi's desire to start his own business led him to founding OpenWorks in Phoenix. Since that time he's been guiding the company's strategies to ensure it maintains an advantage over its competitors. He's grown the company from a single operating unit to an industry leader with 55 employees and over 400 franchises in three states with over 1,500 customers.

In addition to his role as OpenWorks CEO, Roudi is also a devoted family man. He currently lives in Arizona with his wife, Betsy and their two children. Roudi also keeps active in the community through his membership with the Young President's Organization, the Executive Committee, and is involved with the Phoenix Children's Hospital.

And they aren't real adept at their job... according to some.

open works is in the business of selling franchises not cleaning offices!!! beware people who are thinking of buying from these scammers!!

I should know they scammed me $15,000 promised me lots of work and $$$. no they gave me a few accounts then found a way to take them away and promise to replace them nope , out $15,000.

your better off folks to start on your own without giving these scammers your hard earned money.. mike, bought in 2007 absolutely one of the worst cleaning companies i have ever dealt with. thier cleaning people certainly do not give even 75% of an effort to make sure my medical office shines. every morning i'm always recleaning my floors and bathroom.

i do not recommend hiring this company at all!

This facility services company provides excellent services and is also a great company to work for!

Researcher's Note:
Kylee J WORKS for Openworks-- this is not in reply to an unhappy customer, Kylee tried bumping up the ratings by posting her own review, where she fails to openly state her bias.

So, in wrapping this tangent up, does Brad Sherman really want to impeach Trump when there's a plethora of information about him, those he is connected to on a personal level and those on a more abstract level are just waiting to be found out?

There's a part of me thinking that the net neutrality issue plays neatly into this aspect; the control of information. Hard to research those fucking with Democracy if the flow of accessible knowledge is throttled.

To those who've made it this far and live in a state where "Joseph's Bistro" operates-- pull up your town and check out the listed locations. Maybe we can all go Scooby Doobie Doo on this shit and make a real difference.

Or, if they are actual bistros and functioning restaurants, then let me know how they are. Gotta admit, this thread has me intrigued.

TL;DR

Guy who filed the treason charges against Trump is establishment Dem who wants to subvert democratic process to be for elites (i.e. Congress) for presidential elections. He also participates in a program that brings kids (middle school and high school aged) to DC to study "politics." He's also associated with Common Cause, a lib thinktank trying to oust Trump. Common Cause is registered to an address in Iowa, which also has a government contractor (Openworks) registered. Openwork's headquarters is located in a building with an eatery sharing a location with a lawyer's office, and another eatery with a name associated with human trafficking (a coyote) When googling Openworks, we get a rabbit hole of invisible bistros literally all over (over 23,000 locations in the United States) and their website goes to a chiropractic clinic in Maryland.

Hello, front.
